Forward

Genealogy work is never done.

My hobby of family history research requires an investment of time and money (access to sources and compiling the results). My goal is to document and share my results with other researchers and family members.

This is accomplished by:

1. On-line (family trees) and
2. Printed books (for those who don't want to do their own research)

In compiling books, I follow a rigorous process of verifying source data; the results are used to correct on-line family trees and expand collected data. Specifically, update family trees on FamiySearch.org and Ancestry.com.

My computer database is Reunion for Macintosh (Leister Productions, Inc) Link

My approach

Phase 1 - build an ancestral chart (going back in time).
- The goal is to discover the immigrant who came to America.
- Often difficult to discover the exact village of origin

Phase 2 - Compile the immigrant's family descendants (going forward in time).
- Often surprised to discover other family member immigrants

Traditional research is document based (paper trail).
DNA testing compliments paper trail research and typically helps with biological connections to other distant cousins.

This book is the result of my continued research into the European origins of the Yagley Family.

DNA

Females have X-X Chromosome pairs.
Males have X-Y Chromosome pairs.

Church Record - Neuweiler Parish

The Evangelical Church records were microfilmed 1987. The original books are stored in a collection 'Manuskripten im Landeskirchlichen Archiv Stuttgart'. There are (4) microfilm rolls that can be accessed through FamilySearch.org. These are known as the Family History Library (FHL) Films. The original church records are in German and cover the period from 1656.

The link: https://www.familysearch.org/en/search/catalog/koha:672920

Here is a description of the books and microfilm from FamilySearch.org.

> Protestant parish register of baptisms, marriages, deaths, family register, confirmations, etc. for Neuweiler (OA. Calw), Württemberg, Germany. Includes Hofstett, Agenbach, Maistern, Hühnerberg, Rehmühle and Klein Enzthal. Text in German.
> Mikrofilme aufgenommen von Manuskripten im Landeskirchlichen Archiv Stuttgart.

I added the English description (2nd column).

Working with the Church records was a challenge. Some films have an index, but not all images have been indexed. These are handwritten records in German. When working with the records, one has to decipher the date and name and location (village). It can be done, although it is not an easy task. Records of interest are noted in the footnotes along with a web link.

Source information

Many sources were consulted for this project. Most sources appear in footnotes. This provides a traceable accounting of data. Primary sources (original records from the same time as the event) are the most reliable. Secondary sources (compilations assembled a long time after the event) are subject to interpretation of the person assembling the data and may contain errors.

Common sources used in this publication:

1. Vital records (birth/baptism, marriage, death).
   - Can be either civil government or church records.
2. Cemeteries - Written cemetery documents and grave markers (many, but not all, graves).
   - Many older cemetery records are not on-site. Locating the records is usually a challenge.
   - Many times field work is required (plots and lots)
3. Census Records - A census is usually recorded every ten years. Available census records: United States Federal Census Records: 1790, 1800, 1810, 1820, 1830, 1840, 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, 1930 and 1940. Note: Most of the 1890 U. S. Census was destroyed in a fire.
4. Private family histories, photographs and portraits.
5. Newspapers - News articles of interest, death notices and obituaries.
6. Military Records.

Access to Sources

Many historic records have been microfilmed as part of historic preservation projects and are internet accessible. Some are freely accessible, some require user registration (REG) and other require paid subscription ($).

My most common resources:

1. FamilySearch.org (REG)
2. Find-A-Grave (FREE)
3. Ancestry.com ($)
4. Newspapers.com ($)
5. Mount Elliott Cemetery (Detroit) www.mtelliott.com

On 16 Jul 1887, at about 11PM, a rowboat, with four occupants, was hit by a large steamboat named 'THE CITY OF MACKINAC'. All four occupants of the rowboat drown in the Detroit River. [132]

Here are some facts from the newspaper articles: [133] [134] [135] [136]

- Four occupants were:
  - Christopher Nicolaus, about 25 years old, stout
  - Mary 'Minnie' Nicolaus, wife, about 25 years old, black hair, had a large lunch basket.
  - Jacob Roller, about 28 years old
  - Jacob Bachmann, about 35 years old, black hair and mustache.
- The rowboat was from the boat house at Frontenac Avenue. The boathouse was operated by Herman Schmidt. The rowboat, was about 16 feet long, green, had the number 8 painted on the side, was provided with two sets of oars, but no light.
- At 7:30PM, Saturday, four occupants started from boat house traveling to Eugene Le Boeuff' wine house on the Canadian shore. Christopher Nicolaus rowed the boat and they reached Le Boeuff's about 9PM.
- At about 11PM, they started the return trip to Detroit, with Jacob Bachmann and Jacob Roller each using one oar, and Mary at the till.
- The steamship 'City of Mackinac' [137] piloted by Captain McKay, struck the rowboat and cutting it in half. The rowboat occupants were thrown into the water and drawn down into the water by the churn of the steamer's paddles. As soon as the captain was made aware of the situation, the steamer was stopped, a small boat was launched and a search and rescue was started. After a considerable amount of time, the rescue boat returned with a section of the rowboat, but no passengers. Captain A. C. Rousseau, of the yacht Aldina R., was on the river, saw the accident and helped out. Captain A. C. Rosseau reported that 'Captain McKay was very much depressed, but I told him to go on with his vessel and I would report the affair to the Detroit authorities.' Rosseau continued the search for about 45 minutes, but found no trace of the passengers. He came ashore and reported the matter at the Elmwood (Police) Station.

- The bodies were recovered Wednesday (20 JUL). None showed any marks of having been bruised by the steamer's wheel.
- A coroner's inquest was held Saturday morning (23 JUL). Captain McKay, Peter Ferguson (lookout) Salam Hobinson (second mate), Larry Hanralty (deckhand) and William Strachan (wheelman), all from the 'City of Mackinac', each testified about the incident. Captain A. C. Rousseau also testified. The police located about 16 witnesses, some/all testified. The jury bought in a verdict that the rowboat did not display a light (as required by law) and the rowboat occupants were in a careless mood due to consuming wine (under the influence of alcohol). No charges were filed against the captain or company (Detroit & Cleveland Steam Navigation Company).

Michael Roller immigrated to Detroit (1880). He was a butcher, Hamtramck (1885); carpenter Detroit (1900, 1910, 1920). Anna Marie 'Emma' Hermes one of twelve brothers and sisters. Anna Marie 'Emma' Hermes, along with Emma's mother, Maria Steffes, Maria's second husband, Anton Reuter, and at least five other children of Maria Steffes-Hermes-Reuter, immigrated to America about 1881. One child, Maria Reuter, stayed in Germany to care for her grandmother Reuter (the mother of Anton Reuter). In 1888, after the death of her grandmother, Maria immigrated to Detroit, Michigan. Two brothers of Emma (Hermes) Roller, Frank (Franz) Hermes and Matthew (Matthias) Hermes, chose to remain in Masburg, Germany and did not emigrate to America. Emma Hermes used to send mail and packages to Germany, perhaps to her two older brothers and younger step-sister, who remained in Germany.
